Charles Burlingham Dies at 100; Lawyer Fought for Civic Reform

Leader in Elections of Mitchel and La Guardia Advocated Improvement of Courts

Charles Culp Burlingham, lawyer and one of New York's greatest crusaders for civic virtue, died late Saturday night at his home, 860 Park Avenue, after a short illness. He was 100 years old.

Mr. Burlingham took special pride in the part he had played in election of two reform Mayors of New York, John Purroy Mitchel in 1913 and Fiorello H. La Guardia in 1933.

He headed the New York City Bar Association during the period of investigation into abuses in city government that culminated in the resignation of Mayor James J. Walker in 1932. Mr. Burlingham then led the Fusion movement's "harmony" committee that chose Mr. La Guardia as the reform candidate for Mayor.

Though he had been blind and almost totally deaf since 1953, he was described by a friend as "gay as a lark." On his 100th birthday last August, he gave a crisp interview in which he said that New York's greatest need still was to improve its courts—part of the cause to which he had devoted his life.

Mr. Burlingham was regarded

The New York Times, 1943

Charles Culp Burlingham

by his countless friends as a spirit that could never grow old. Even in his nineties, blind and practically deaf, he retained the wit, humor, understanding and vigor that marked his life-long career as a force for good government in this city.

His name was attached to countless organizations and activities, to communications in the newspapers and appeals for one cause or another. But his real effectiveness was behind the scenes of politics and law in the city.

He used his personal charm, his common sense and willingness to realize that society was not perfect to achieve many of the ends that more direct attack might not have yielded.

Mr. Burlingham had been characterized as a "one-man good-government party." He was a bit more modest. Chatting one day with a friend, at a conference of persons seeking the re-election of Mayor La Guardia, he said, looking around the room:

"This is the second time in my life that I've been a member of a four-man political party." The first time, he explained, was in the Mitchel campaign of 1913.

He lent his name and respectability, as well as his activity, to the Fusion cause in 1933, 1937 and 1941, and it is in this connection that present generations knew him best.

Cited by Bar Group

The Association of the Bar of the City of New York described Mr. Burlingham as "the first citizen of the city" when in 1953 it awarded to him a medal for "exceptional contributions to the honor and standing of the bar in this community." In 1953 Mr. Burlingham had been appointed to an advisory committee to the executive committee of the association.

At his ninetieth birthday he was one of New York's oldest practicing lawyers. Even beyond this milestone, neither his influence nor his interest showed much sign of flagging.

Mr. Burlingham continued to head the Civil Service Reform Association; he was chairman of a group working for better methods for removal or retirement of judges; he was honorary vice president of the Community Service Society (an association that dated to 1889); and he was chairman of the campaign for the restoration of St. George's Protestant Episcopal Church.

A few months before Mr. Burlingham's 100th birthday he wrote as follows to a friend whose portrait was to be presented to the City Bar Association:

"If I am extant when your portrait is presented I think I may attend. However, brethren, the time is short and you had better set a painter or sculptor at work soon."

He then added this postscript:

"If you have time to call on me, I should be delighted to talk with you about the attitude of the association this year toward the selection of judges."

To illustrate the need for reforms, Mr. Burlingham used to tell a story about a New York judge in the Eighteen Nineties who signed documents while trying cases. One day he handed his court clerk an opinion in an important case.

"But, judge," said the clerk, "you set that case down for argument next Wednesday."

"Oh, did I?" replied the judge. "Well, don't file the opinion yet."

On the day set, the judge heard counsel argue the case at length. After a proper interval, he filed his opinion without changing a word.

Law Degree at Columbia

Mr. Burlingham was the son of the Rev. Dr. Aaron Hale and Mrs. Emma Starr Burlingham. He was born in Plainfield, N. J., on Aug. 31, 1858, and received an A. B. degree from Harvard, at the age of 21.

Two years later he earned a Bachelor of Laws at Columbia. The University conferred on him an honorary Doctor of Laws degree in 1933. He was admitted to the bar in 1881, and on Sept. 29, 1883, married Louisa W. Lawrence.

Taking up practice in New York, Mr. Burlingham quickly became active in civic affairs in various fields. He became a member of the Board of Education in 1897 and served as its president in 1902-03.

From the start he was identified with a wide range of liberal causes. In 1920 he submitted resolutions to the City Bar Association urging that a committee go to Albany to condemn the Assembly's suspension of five Socialist members. He backed a Fusion movement to oppose John F. Hylan in 1921.

The Eighteenth Amendment, he declared in a statement submitted to an Episcopal diocesan convention in 1922, produced class antagonism and hatred. At the same time, he said it should be obeyed as long as it was law.

Mr. Burlingham was elected a director of the Legal Aid Society in 1925, and also became active in the Civil Service Reform Association. He was deeply interested in the case of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, who had been found guilty of killing two men in a payroll robbery in Braintree, Mass. He expounded his views on legal aspects of the matter in letters to The New York Times.

Despite his manifold professional duties—he ranked high particularly in the field of admiralty law—he found time to share the sponsorship of the printing of the full record of the Sacco-Vanzetti trial and to sign a prefatory note explaining the project. His co-signers included Newton D. Baker, John W. Davis and Elihu Root. Their purpose was to allow public study of the conduct of the controversial case.

Mr. Burlingham was a Democrat who liked to tell humorous stories about Republicans.

"Did you hear about the farmer in Connecticut?" he would ask. "A very respectable fellow, a member of the Congregationalist Church and very high in the Republican party. He was trampled on by one of his own cows. I say it must have been a Democratic cow."

In 1929 Mr. Burlingham headed a special committee on old-age problems of the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor. Two months after that committee reported he was elected to head the Association of the Bar of the City of New York. He was at that time senior member of the firm of Burlingham, Veeder, Masten & Feary of 27 William Street. The firm's most recent listing at the same address was Burlingham, Hupper & Kennedy.

Mr. Burlingham succeeded Charles Evans Hughes in the bar group. Under the new president's leadership the association soon had to cope with problems that were beginning to hint that a far-flung city investigation might be in the offing. The association conducted the successful removal proceedings against Magistrate Albert H. Vitale.

With ramifications of the city's corruption becoming more and more evident, Mr. Burlingham addressed the State Chamber of Commerce in 1930 and declared flatly that all law reforms depended upon able judges. All through the period that he headed the bar group he emphasized this ideal.

When the City Bar demanded that the then Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt act on charges that judgeships were frequently bought, Mr. Burlingham declared:

"Our Government, indeed our civilization, rests on the integrity of the courts."

All through the exposures that culminated in investigation of the courts the association took a firm stand, under the guidance of Mr. Burlingham. The District Attorney, Thomas C. T. Crain, was assailed for inefficiency. Gradually the tenseness of the entire municipal situation increased. The investigation and resignation of Mayor Walker—ultimately the ousting of Tammany and election of the Fusion government—followed.

At the end of Mr. Burlingham's second term as president of the bar association, the nominating committee unanimously named him for a third term. When he was notified, he refused the nomination, saying:

"Do you expect me to be an ass in a lion's skin? No other man has ever served for three terms except James C. Carter, the lion of the bar of my time, and I would not dare assume his place."

Honored by Williams College

He was succeeded as head of the bar group in 1931 by Mr. Davis. A month later Williams College bestowed upon the retiring executive the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

When the Fusion movement took form in the summer of 1933, Mr. Burlingham headed the "harmony" committee that brought about the substitution of Mr. La Guardia for John F. Ryan as the candidate for Mayor. The committee continued to function after the nomination was settled and received a good share of the credit for the Fusion victory.

Never tiring in his fight for an honest judiciary, Mr. Burlingham had in 1932 submitted a resolution to the city bar group calling for a continuous drive to keep the bench "free from political and party domination." The resolution was adopted. It was an outgrowth, specifically, of the Hofstadter-Steuer judiciary "deal" that had been unsuccessfully opposed by a nonpartisan ticket during the November election.

Mr. Burlingham headed the Independent Citizens Committee for the election of Joseph D. McGoldrick as Controller in the fall of 1934. About the same time he was chosen president of the Harvard Alumni Association. He had previously served as president of the alumni association of the Columbia Law School.

From 1931 to 1939, a period covering most of the depression, Mr. Burlingham was president of the Welfare Council of the City of New York. But many other good causes enlisted his energies over the years. These included a Federal child labor amendment, slum clearance, minimum wages, fair employment practices, the fate of conscientious objectors and the admission of women as vestrymen. On the last named subject, he offered resolutions at six successive conventions of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

He was a member of the American Bar Association, the New York County Lawyers Association and the International Law Association. His clubs were the Century, Harvard, Downtown, Coffee House and Church.

Mr. Burlingham is survived by his son, Charles Burlingham; a daughter, Miss Anne Hoe Burlingham, five grandchildren and twelve great-grandchildren.

By his specific request, the funeral service will be restricted to members of the immediate family. At yesterday's regular service in St. George's Church, of which he was chief warden, special prayers were said for him.

Carol Lee Briller, Mr. Furgueson

GARDEN CITY, L. I., June 21.—The marriage of Miss Carol Lee Briller, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William Briller, to Mr. Cornelius Furgueson 4th, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Furgueson 3d, took place today in the Community Church. A reception was held at the Garden City Hotel.

Mrs. Herbert Reilly jr. was matron of honor and the bride-maids were the Misses Sherely Thomas, Sarah Exline and Nancy Flynn. Mr. Michael Graham Furgueson was best man for his brother.

SUPREME COURT.

BY MR. JUSTICE MUNDER.

King v. Goldstein—The plaintiffs seek a permanent injunction against the interference by the defendant with their claimed easement over a ten-foot strip along the easterly line of a plot of land owned by the defendant. The plaintiffs are owners of adjacent land. The lands of all parties were originally shown on a subdivision map entitled "Map of Property of the S. T. Clock Realty Company, Fire Island Beach, Suffolk County, N. Y." which map was filed in the Suffolk County Clerk's Office on June 13, 1912, as Map No. 470. ¶The map embraces a parcel of land extending from the Great South Bay to the Atlantic Ocean having a width generally of 340 feet. On the filed map there was shown along the westerly boundary a twenty-foot strip which apparently was to provide access from the bay and the ocean to the westerly tier of lots shown on the map. Immediately abutting the westerly tier of lots was a second or middle tier of lots. Along the easterly line of the middle tier of lots was another twenty foot access strip and east of that was another tier of lots. ¶A few months after filing this subdivision map the S. T. Clock Realty Company caused to be made another map which is identical with the filed map except that it shows a ten-foot strip from the bay to the ocean along the westerly boundary line of the middle tier of lots which was taken from the easterly sides of the lots in the westerly tier. This second map was never filed but testimony was adduced that it was used as a sales map and further that at that time, in 1912, and for some years before there was a board walk where the ten-foot strip was shown which led to a dock on the bay side and that this dock and board walk provided the only access to the entire development at that time. It was also testified that then, as always, it was the accepted custom to traverse the lands of others with impunity, and to place boards in the sand to make walking easier. No owner, it was said, objected, and if one built on his land across such a path the other inhabitants simply detoured around the obstruction. ¶This development is known as Lonelyville, and it is essentially a summer colony. As time went on, more people came to live there. Access now is generally had by a public ferry from Bay Shore to Fairharbor, with the inhabitants walking or taxiing along a path or road across private land. The dock and the ten foot strip along Lot No. 22 which is here in dispute, is not then used. It is used only when the inhabitants come to Lonelyville by private boat or when they fish or swim in the bay. ¶On November 3, 1913, the S. T. Clock Realty Company conveyed to the Fire Island Fishing Company, Inc., Lot No. 22, which is the lot here in question presently owned by the defendant. It fronts on the bay and is in the western tier of lots. By the same deed there were also conveyed Lots No. 25 and No. 26, immediately to the south of Lot No. 22 on the western tier of lots, and also Lot No. 56 on the western tier, and Lots No. 58 and 63 which together formed the southern end of the western and middle tiers on the ocean front. The deed also conveyed to the fishing company a ten foot strip of land taken from the easterly ends of the lots on the western tier between Lot No. 26 and Lot No. 56. Thus the fishing company became the owner of lots on the bay, lots on the ocean and a ten foot strip to join them. Over this ten foot strip and their other land the fishing company built a substantial plankway on which was built a railway to haul fish from boats on the ocean side to fish traps in the bay. ¶Up to the time of this conveyance, absent any contrary testimony, it must be assumed that the realty company had sold none of the lots in the western tier and, consequently, it was able to convey the ten foot strip to the fishing company. The fishing company was dissolved in 1916, and on November 28, 1916, it conveyed to a trustee for some individual stockholders, among whom was the plaintiff, Dr. George S. King, all of the lots and the ten foot strip that had previously been conveyed to the fishing company. ¶None of the present plaintiffs owns any lot previously owned by the fishing company nor is there any evidence that any deed made by the S. T. Clock Realty Company or the Fire Island Fishing Company, Inc., specifically conveyed any rights in any ten foot strip. There is no evidence whether or not the trustee for the fishing company stockholders ever conveyed to anyone the ten foot strip. ¶The plaintiffs here claim no right by conveyance. Their sole claim now is a vested right of access based on an implied easement. On the trial and in their brief, plaintiffs argue that they and all other lot owners in this development are entitled to this easement. Their action, however, is not a representative one. They sue on their own claims alone. ¶As to them there is no proof that they or their predecessors in title purchased from the S. T. Clock Realty Company before that company sold the ten foot strip to the fishing company. Therefore, not being the owner of or possessor of a lesser interest in the ten foot strip, the Clock Company could convey no right in the ten foot strip and no right could arise in favor of its subsequent purchasers by implication. The conveyance to the fishing company having been recorded, all subsequent purchasers from the realty company are presumed to have had notice thereof. ¶After the fishing company acquired title to the strip and erected the dock, or only improved it, if use was made of it by others such use must be assumed to have been by permission and not such as would give rise to a prescriptive right (Moore v. Day, 199 App. Div. 76, 191 N. Y. S. 731). This would be consistent with the prevailing custom of permitted trespass under which no claim of grant or right is asserted as a predicate of adverse user. ¶As for the plaintiff, Dr. George S. King, he must be the last to claim adverse user or an implied easement, having been a participating equitable owner in the fishing company strip and lots and thus having actual knowledge of the facts. ¶For another reason there can be no implied easement of access. The dock and board walk may be a convenience, but, from the evidence, it is not the only access to the lots. On the map itself other ways were laid out which gave access to every lot in the development. What made the dock at lot No. 22 more convenient was the fact that there is deeper water at that point than at the northerly ends of the designated ways. But there seems to be nothing to prevent the owners from dredging a basin and erecting docks to meet the designated ways. Furthermore, the dock is only occasionally used. The more common mode of travel is the public ferry at Fairharbor, and in such mode there is not only no necessity to use any part of lot No. 22 but in fact it never is used. ¶None of the cases cited in plaintiff's brief sustains an easement under the peculiar conditions here existing, nor does any principle of law or equity require such a finding. ¶I conclude therefore that the plaintiffs have wholly failed to establish any right to an easement and consequently have no right to a judgment restraining the defendant from interfering with the board walk on her land or its use by them or anyone else. ¶Submit findings and judgment dismissing the complaint in accordance herewith.

Their action, however, is not a representative one. They sue on their own claims alone. ¶As to them there is no proof that they or their predecessors in title purchased from the S. T. Hotel Ruined By Blaze on Fire Island

100 Residents in A Bucket Brigade

Special to the Herald Tribune

FIRE ISLAND PINES, L. I., May 31.—More than 100 residents of this and near-by Fire Island communities formed a bucket brigade early this morning in an unsuccessful attempt to stop a fire which destroyed the two-story, frame Pines Hotel and several adjacent buildings.

Brookhaven town police said the fire broke out near the hotel kitchen at about 4:30 a. m. and burned until 7 a. m., despite the efforts of firemen ferried across the bay on police boats from Blue Point, Sayville and Patchogue, on the Long Island mainland.

Several Firemen Burned

About fifty people were evacuated with most of their belongings from the hotel. Several of the firemen sustained minor burns on the hands, but there were no other injuries.

Damage to the hotel and the adjacent houses was estimated at $100,000. The fire also destroyed a section of scrub pine before it was brought under control.

Fire Island Pines is a community of about 100 homes. Residents and volunteer firemen here were joined in their attempt to extinguish the fire by residents of near-by Cherry Grove and Davis Park.

Random Notes in Washington: Damn the Political Torpedoes!

Justice Department Ignores the Furies in Endorsing Brooklynite for Bench

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 19—The Justice Department has decided to damn the political torpedoes and steam ahead with another controversial judicial appointment in New York.

The prospective nominee for Federal District judge for the Eastern District is John R. Bartels. The district covers Brooklyn, Queens and Nassau and Suffolk Counties.

Mr. Bartels' political drawback is that he comes from Brooklyn. Local political leaders want the vacant seat to go to a lawyer from Queens, which has no representative on the Eastern District bench now, while five judges claim Brooklyn as home.

After long consideration—the vacancy has existed for fourteen months—the department has decided that Mr. Bartels is the best-qualified candidate and that borough pride will have to give way. The next move is up to President Eisenhower.
